To Our Farmers:

On account of the war in Europe, it is impossible to ship cotton abroad. All the cotton exchanges have closed, and for the time being, the only cotton market is that being taken by American mills.

We would advise you to store your cotton in the local warehouse, bringing your receipts to the bank and if you need some extra funds we are perfectly willing to assist you, and, also, if necessary, we will extend notes to you by farmers who are unable to meet them until they sell their cotton. We do not want you to sacrifice your cotton. The Corpus Christi National Bank will assist you in obtaining a fair price for it. In return, we expect you to properly protect it by having your cotton under a good roof, protected from weather and fire. With this kind of collateral, you may rest easy, knowing that as soon as conditions adjust themselves, you will be able to convert your crop into money at, we hope, a good price.

This is a time when the bankers, merchants and farmers should all work together. If you owe your merchant and the bank, we suggest that you bring your cotton warehouse receipts to us, and, if you want to protect your merchants, you can give notice to the bank that upon sale of your cotton we are to make certain payments to the merchants. In this way you can deposit all your warehouse receipts in your bank, and, at the same time, protect the merchant whom you owe. We think this is the proper thing for our farmers to do, and we feel sure that the merchants will be willing to extend all reasonable accommodations to those entitled to receive them.

Now, that we have had some rain, we urge all farmers to put their ground into a thorough state of cultivation. We hope you will put a heavy acreage in feed, and also put in some livestock, especially hogs, which are very profitable in this country. The bank is willing to extend reasonable accommodations to farmers who will invest in good livestock.

We will appreciate a personal call from you and an expression from you regarding this letter. Yours very truly,

Corpus Christi National Bank
